Womble Carlyle attorney Hada de Varona Haulsee has been named to the board of directors of the University of North Carolina Law Alumni Association. She will serve a three-year term beginning in January.

The board focuses on providing leadership for the UNC Law School Alumni Association through representation of a geographic area or special constituency, serving as ambassadors for the law school in the community and with legal colleagues, supporting fundraising efforts by making an annual gift to the law school and providing guidance for the law school's services to alumni and the legal community.

Haulsee has nearly 30 years of experience in defending clients in large-scale class-action and product-liability lawsuits. Earlier this year, Haulsee was named the first-ever winner of UNC's Outstanding Latina Alumna Award. She graduated from UNC Law School in 1981.
